Meeting Accreditation Information

Practice Gaps

- According to a recent closed claims analysis, providing anesthetic care outside of the operating room is a growing area of liability and seems to be associated with more severe injuries than other types of claims. This program will help to address the apparent knowledge gap leading to these injuries.
- The American Board of Anesthesiology recently introduced a new simulation requirement for anesthesiologists who wish to maintain their board certification. This requirement is so new that many anesthesiologists have very little knowledge about the requirement.
- A recent analysis of the ASA closed claims database revealed that the most common claims for injury in the 2000s have been related to regional anesthesia. This program will help to address the apparent knowledge gap leading to these injuries.
- Maternal and neonatal death/severe injury related to substandard anesthesia care continue to be a major problem, according to a recent analysis of the ASA closed claims database. A review of the latest advancements in obstetrical anesthesia will help address this knowledge gap.

Learning Objectives

- State the challenges encountered in providing safe anesthesia care outside of the operating room.
- Assess the new role of high fidelity simulation in maintenance of Anesthesiology Board Certification.
- Safely employ fidelity simulation techniques in ultrasound-guided regional anesthesia.
- Review the latest updates in providing safe obstetrical anesthesia care.
